Woodcarving 106 (C) Natural

This is a woodcarving knife made of carbon steel, excellent for beginners. It is also easy to sharpen, which means that you can experience enjoyable woodcarving moments over and over again.

With a barrel-shaped oiled handle of Scandinavian birch wood and a 2,5 mm thick, tapered blade of carbon steel, you can carve beautiful objects, only your imagination sets the limits. The knife's full rat tail tang, which runs through the entire handle, provides both strength and stability in each cut and the handle gives you the opportunity to shape it to your own needs or expression. The knife sheath made of polymer should always be mounted on the knife when not in use, partly to minimize the risk of injury from cuts and not least to maintain the sharpness. Carbon steel rusts, wipe and oil the blade after use. The characteristic Woodcarving knives are highly appreciated all over the world and are well known for their excellent sharpness and high-quality. Not least because they are used by the skilled craftsmen in Nusnäs, where one of Sweden's most famous national symbols, the Dalahorse, is made.
